LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL
from
THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY BOARD

November 1, 1965

To His Excellency, the Honorable Robert E. McNair, Governor of South Carolina, and to the Honorable members of the General Assembly of South Carolina:

Dear Sirs:

We have the honor to transmit the report of the South Carolina State Library Board for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1965.

The report contains a summary of public library activities in the state, the service statistics for each public library and each college library, and a report of the program being carried on under the State Plan for the use of federal funds allotted to South Carolina under the Library Services and Construction Act.

The report points up the increasing importance of public library service at state, county and community level. The report is an encouraging one, reflecting as it does increased local support for public library service and increased awareness on the part of the public of the services available to them through their public library and the extension of services of the State Library Board.

Respectfully submitted,
Hugh L. Willcox, Chairman

TWENTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY BOARD

July 1, 1964 - June 30, 1965

THE STATE LIBRARY BOARD

In 1929 the General Assembly enacted legislation establishing the South Carolina Public Library Association as the state library extension agency. Known as the State Library Board from the time of the appointment of the first board of five members, the agency over the past thirty-six years has worked steadily toward a state-wide system of county and regional libraries through which public library service would be available to all the people of the state. Not until 1943 were funds appropriated to establish an office and staff for the Board. This date marks the birth of the present public library program in South Carolina.

The State Library Board is charged with the responsibility of developing public library service over the entire state and is given the authority to adopt rules and regulations which will best accomplish this program. In carrying out its program, the Board is guided by state and national standards of public library service. In addition to extending service to unserved areas of the state, the Board's program aims at assisting already established libraries to achieve the state's standards of service which were based on the national standards for public library service.

PUBLIC LIBRARY PROGRESS

Progress made in the state-wide program of public library development may be measured in its extent and quality of service. Today the people in all but four counties are served by county or regional libraries. The quality of service varies not only with the amount of financial support, but also with the economy of the library structure in the county. Where more than one public library is supported from tax funds in a single county, the service tends to be meager and below that given in counties where service is provided from a unified county library system. During the past ten years, Anderson, Beaufort, Florence, and Greenville have unified their separate public libraries into single county library systems serving the entire county. Through eliminating duplication in administration, overhead, book collections, and equipment, the library service to the entire population in these counties has been improved 100 per cent. Counties which still maintain more than one public library are Darlington, Marion, Union, and York. Abbeville County combined its city and county library into a single county system by Act of the Legislature this year.

The main strengths of the public library program in South Carolina are in the legal foundation of the program, general recognition of the essential nature of public library service, high standards of book selection for library collections, and the dedication of many state and local leaders to the improvement of public library service at all levels. The main weaknesses are the scarcity of qualified librarians, the reluctance of a few library boards to move ahead into better patterns of organization and more efficient methods of operation, and the low per capita support of the service. Library support is increasing, but not at a rate to keep up with increasing costs and increasing demands by the public for superior service.

STATE AID FOR PUBLIC LIBRARIES

South Carolina was one of the first states to recognize its responsibility for developing adequate public library service at the local level. A program of State Aid to public libraries was initiated in 1943 with the establishment of the State Library Board's office. Over the ensuing years State Aid has been instrumental in the establishment and improvement of county and regional libraries. The requirements which local libraries must meet in order to participate in the State Aid Program have been largely responsible for the establishment of libraries on a county or regional basis and for book collections of high quality. The amount of State Aid is insignificant, only $1,500 per qualifying county library, but its effect on the total public library program of the state has been significant. State Aid should be substantially increased and allocated to counties on a per capita basis in order to make its distribution equitable. Such a program would aid the local library to build its book collection to a level demanded by a rapidly expanding reading public.

AID TO COUNTIES WITHOUT COUNTY-WIDE LIBRARY SERVICE

The State Library Board makes a special effort to help counties without county-wide library service to establish this service and in the meantime to improve service from already established public libraries. To accomplish this object a special Small Libraries Project has been developed to give the unserved county an opportunity to explore the possibility of securing service through contract with a well established county library in a neighboring county. During 1964-65 the Small Libraries Project was offered to public libraries in Chesterfield, McCormick, and Williamsburg counties. Since there is no public library in Clarendon County, the offer could not be made in that county. The Kingstree Library in Williamsburg County accepted the offer. Since no neighboring county library was strong enough to extend service to Williamsburg County, a special book project was developed for the Kingstree Library to provide a constant supply of new adult fiction and popular non-fiction. This service is expected to improve within the next two years.

INTERLIBRARY LOAN SERVICE

The interlibrary loan service is designed to supply the rare, the expensive, and the highly technical book to libraries throughout the state for the use of their patrons. This service makes available to the people of the state wherever they may live the resources of a large reference and interlibrary loan library. Public libraries make heavy use of this service. In addition to supplying books on interlibrary loan, difficult questions received by the local library which cannot be answered from local resources are forwarded to the State Library Board. Through the reference referral service the reference collection is available to citizens of the entire state.

SERVICE TO THE BLIND

North and South Carolina cooperate in the operation of a Regional Library for the Blind which provides service to both states. Costs are shared on the basis of the number of readers using the service in each state. At the close of the fiscal year 630 adults and 38 children in South Carolina were active users of the service. A total of 25,045 books and periodicals were borrowed by these readers during the year.

The library collection for blind readers is made up of "talking" books and periodicals. The collection includes both juvenile and adult books and periodicals. The Library of Congress supplies all materials without charge. The two states pay only for servicing the collection.

HOME DEMONSTRATION READING CLUB

The State Library Board and the Agricultural Extension Service conduct in cooperation a planned reading program for Home Demonstration groups. The purpose of the program is to introduce rural women to the wealth of information available to them through their county and regional libraries. Each year a list of 200 carefully selected books is prepared by the State Library Board and distributed to Home Demonstration Clubs. A reading club certificate is awarded to members of the clubs who successfully complete the required reading program. During the year the lists were distributed through service outlets in 28 county and regional libraries. Ten counties conducted reading clubs, and 197 certificates were awarded club members.

LIBRARY PROGRESS DURING THE YEAR

The South Carolina Legislature authorized the construction of a State Library building to house the collections and activities of the State Library Board.

A Governor's Conference on Public Libraries was called by Governor Donald S. Russell and held in Columbia on April 28, 1965.

The Beaufort County Library building was completed and opened to the public.

The Abbeville County Library, a unified system made up of the old county library and the city library in Abbeville, was established by Act of the Legislature.

LIBRARY SERVICES AND CONSTRUCTION ACT

Under the Library Services and Construction Act additional financial support is provided to state library extension agencies for the development of public library service. Funds are granted to each state on the basis of a plan for the use of federal funds prepared by the state library extension agency. The revised Library Services and Construction Act, enacted by Congress in 1963, removed the restrictions which had limited use of funds from the Library Services Acts of 1956 and 1960 to the development of rural library service. For the first time in 1964-65, program funds could be used for general public library service. The amount of funds granted the state is determined by the ratio of the state's total population and per capita income to the national average. A state is automatically disqualified for a grant of funds under the act if the appropriation for the library extension agency falls below that made for the year 1963.

THE PLAN

The South Carolina plan for the implementation of Title I of the Library Services and Construction Act within the State is aimed at the correction of the major deficiencies in public library service in the State. These deficiencies are deemed to be an inadequate state level program, inadequate reference service from State and local levels, an inadequate supply of professionally trained librarians, and units of library administration too small to provide adequate service as measured against state and national standards.

The State Plan is implemented in South Carolina through a series of projects carefully planned to remedy these deficiencies by realistic and practical measures. Each project is designed to build on the achievements of preceding years, and all are closely related in purpose and administration so that progress in any one is reflected in the total program. It is the intent of the State Plan that Library Services and Construction Act funds shall be used to strengthen public library service by providing materials and services which cannot be provided by local funds while stimulating by example and incentive the growth of strong locally supported library systems.

FIELD SERVICE. This program is concerned with the extension and improvement of public library service throughout the state, and it provides the means by which other specific projects are put into effect. The State Library Board's field staff provides direct assistance to librarians, board members, and others interested in establishing or improving public library service. This year much work was done in Abbeville and Darlington counties aimed at the establishment of unified county library systems.

REFERENCE AND INTERLIBRARY LOAN SERVICE. The program initiated under the Library Services Act in 1957 was continued and expanded in the current year. A total of 6,446 books and 405 photocopies from the microfilm holdings were loaned to public libraries from the interlibrary loan collection, and 1,366 reference questions were answered for local libraries by the reference department. Two reference service workshops for pre-professional library staff members were held during the year as part of the continuing effort to insure better use of reference resources now available in libraries, branches, and bookmobiles. Continuing efforts to promote better library service to business and industry in South Carolina, the reference staff compiled and distributed a supplement to the previously published bibliography of business, technical, and scientific books available on interlibrary loan from the State Library Board.

A major undertaking of the year was a state-wide reference resources survey conducted under the sponsorship of the State Library Board by Dr. John H. Moore, then Professor of History at Winthrop College. Dr. Moore's survey of research materials available in all public, special, and college libraries of the state was made by means of questionnaires and many personal visits to libraries. The completed survey includes a guide to the resources in all public libraries (Part I) and a guide to periodical and newspaper holdings (Part II). Publication of this valuable tool for researchers and librarians is now being planned as a joint project of the State Library Board and the South Carolina Library Association.

PERSONNEL PROGRAM. Recognizing that qualified personnel is an essential element of good library service, the State Library Board continued the intern, scholarship, and in-service training projects and added a salary supplement project. The Intern Project is intended to attract qualified young people to the field of librarianship, enabling the interns to explore the possibilities of a library career under actual working conditions and providing a testing ground for applicants for the Scholarship Program. Twenty-two interns worked in twelve county and regional libraries during the summer of 1964, making a total of eighty young people who have held internships during the five years of the project.

During 1964-65 four young people attended graduate library school with the aid of $2,500 grants under the Scholarship Program. Each scholarship recipient was sponsored by a county or regional library in the state to which he returned for employment after graduation. Five scholarship graduates of previous years were also eligible for salary supplements under the program during the year. The Scholarship Program has been of appreciable value to South Carolina's public libraries because it is helping to remedy the shortage of adequately trained professional staff which has long handicapped the extension and improvement of public library service in the state. Although the staff shortage has by no means been completely alleviated, the Scholarship Program is filling the most pressing needs. Not only are a few scholarship graduates placed in library positions each year, but the publicity and recruiting for the program usually attracts a number of other qualified people to the library profession.

While the Intern and Scholarship Programs are intended to provide qualified personnel for South Carolina public libraries through long-range recruiting activity, the Workshop and In-Service Training Program attempts to improve library service immediately by providing training for personnel already employed in the public libraries and orientation for library trustees. During the year, nineteen pre-professional staff members were awarded scholarships to attend three-week workshops in library science. Three professional librarians were given scholarships for a workshop in adult reading guidance at the University of Wisconsin, and three library trustees were awarded travel grants to the Southeastern Library Association meeting in Norfolk.

Following the adoption of the "Standards for South Carolina Public Libraries" by the Public Library Section of the South Carolina Library Association in October, 1964, the State Library Board developed a Salary Supplements Project designed to assist libraries in achieving the recommended salary schedule for professional librarians. The project provides grants for salary supplements for a three-year period, at the end of which time local funds are expected to cover the full salary. Within the first year, four libraries assumed full responsibility for the new salary schedule.

COUNTY LIBRARY PROJECT. One county library demonstration was concluded and another begun under this project which is designed to improve public library service by the development of a unified county library system in counties in which more than one system previously existed.

The Beaufort County Library Demonstration ended on December 31, 1964. The two-year project brought about the consolidation of two township libraries to form a nucleus for county-wide service, the purchase of a second bookmobile to extend service to all sections of the county, and the development of a sound program of service. The period was highlighted by the receipt of the Dorothy Canfield Fisher national award from the Book-of-the-Month Club. A grant from the Housing and Home Finance Agency, Community Facilities Administration, permitted the construction of a modern and more adequate building which was opened for service the last month of the demonstration.

1964-65 was the first year of a planned three-year demonstration program in Florence County made possible by the consolidation of the city library and the existing county circulating library which had provided limited bookmobile service in the rural areas of the county. It was a year of transition and reorganization which resulted in the merging of services, resources, and staff of the two systems; the employment of additional staff; the purchase of a new bookmobile and the extension of service throughout the county; the strengthening of the library's book collection; renovation of quarters for the extension department; and the incorporation of two branch libraries into the system. These noteworthy achievements established the new library system on a firm basis and won public support for the library as a county agency.

REGIONAL LIBRARY PROJECT. A successful Regional Project was completed in 1962 for the Aiken-Barnwell-Edgefield Regional Library. At that time a new contract was drawn up whereby the ABE Regional Library agreed to serve Bamberg County through the Small Library Project. After two years under this project, Bamberg joined the Region as a member county on July 1, 1964. A demonstration program was initiated to aid in the extension of library services in the county. During the first year of the demonstration, county-wide library service and bookmobile service were made available in Bamberg County for the first time. The Denmark Library, one of the last subscription libraries in the state, became a branch of the Aiken-Bamberg-Barnwell-Edgefield Regional Library. Land was purchased by the Bamberg County Library Board and plans made for a new building. The ABBE Region continued to operate as an efficient, well-organized, and ably directed system, and a successful demonstration is anticipated.

The Small Library Project, an outgrowth of the Regional Library Project, was originally planned to enable a well established county library to extend service by contract to a community in a neighboring county without county-wide service. The project was seen as an exploratory stage possibly leading to the formation of a regional system. In 1964-65, the Kingstree Public Library in Williamsburg County was the only library which met requirements for participation in the project. Since no suitable neighboring county library was available to contract for service this year, the project was in the form of a subscription to a commercial library agency with some supervision by the State Library Board. The project will continue for another year by which time it is hoped that a neighboring county library will be sufficiently developed to provide the service first contemplated.

BOOK COLLECTION IMPROVEMENT PROJECT. In its sixth year, the Book Collection Improvement Project took two forms. The Juvenile Binding and Replacement Project was designed to bring the circulating collections used to serve children to an acceptable standard. Grants were made to rebind or replace children's books which had become worn or outdated. Sixteen county and regional library systems, receiving grants of 4¢ per capita, spent a total of $59,753.29.

The Periodicals Project was a part of a continuous effort to improve public library reference service in South Carolina. The project provided for periodical grants to public library systems to upgrade the quality of periodicals, to increase their quantity, and to make them easier to use. Libraries were allowed to use one-third of their grant for first subscriptions to periodicals and two-thirds for indexes, microfilms, supplies, and equipment. Sixteen county and regional library systems participated in the project to spend a total of $29,429.11. Grants varied from $1,500 to $3,000 according to the population served.

previous years were continued for libraries which had not been able to meet the requirements for participation earlier.

The popular Books for the College Bound Project of 1962-63 was extended. Each qualifying county and regional library received the collection of 200 titles for all service points serving a population of at least 1,500, open nine hours per week, which had not received the original set.

LIBRARY INTERPRETATION. Through this project, now in its fourth year, the public has been informed of the services of the public library, of its value to each individual, and the necessity of strong financial support at all levels if the service is to achieve its potential in South Carolina. It was an active public relations year with interest focused on two significant events: the First Annual Governor's Conference on Public Libraries and the General Assembly's authorization of funds for a new building for the State Library Board. Use was made of all the news media, plus special publications and exhibits, to support and publicize the South Carolina public library program.

EQUIPMENT PROJECT. The project which provides equipment for headquarters libraries was extended in 1964-65 to two county library systems meeting requirements for participation for the first time.

CAROLINA MATERIALS: In 1960-61 the State Library Board undertook to make materials for the study of South Carolina history more easily accessible to the state's residents. With the assistance of recognized authorities in the field, a list of one hundred valuable, out-of-print books in South Carolina history was compiled. The books were brought back into print by the Xerox process and deposited in one library in each of the six Congressional Districts which would agree to open its full history collection to the use of the people in the Congressional District. In 1964-65 an additional twenty-seven titles were added to the project and deposited in the participating libraries. The entire collection was placed in a seventh library.

SECURITY PROJECT. This project was aimed at solving the problems of book theft and mutilation. Various methods of protection were investigated including everything from private detectives to electronic devices for theft detection. Representatives of the programs supplied by Bro-Dart and General Nucleonics were asked to submit plans for the use of these systems. After a careful study, the Sentronic system was offered on an experimental basis to two large libraries; both were interested, but neither could provide local funds for participation in such a project or staff supervision essential for a conclusive trial. Therefore, this project never became operative.

CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM. Title II of the Library Services and Construction Act made funds available for the first time in 1965 to aid in the construction of public library buildings. However, no local library was able to develop plans for building construction and secure the necessary matching funds in time to participate in construction projects for Fiscal '65. Under these circumstances, the State Library Board requested matching funds from the S. C. General Assembly for the construction of a State Library building and secured these funds late in Fiscal '65. Included in this campaign were a feasibility study and the schematic drawings of the proposed building. A library architectural consultant was employed to review all plans submitted in connection with applications for Title II funds.

1964-65 STATISTICS FOR THE PALMETTO STATE'S PUBLIC LIBRARIES

With all of the State's 55 public library systems reporting to the State Library Board for the year 1964-65, these interesting facts on public library support and use are recorded:

Total public library income	$2,237,415
Statewide per capita library income94
Expenditures for salaries	$1,220,717
Expenditures for books	$ 470,613
Statewide book circulation	6,496,608
Statewide per capita book circulation.....	2.7

Total public library income was up 10% over 1963-64. Expenditures for salaries showed a 5% increase, and for books about the same as the previous year. Circulation of books had a slight increase but over all per capita remained the same 2.7.
